MINISTERS WERE SO TOLO YESTERDAY

Closing Appeared Propitious as Evangelist Worker-Sermons Not Delivered

Ministers of the city yesterday reported that they had heard throughout the day from members of their congregations that they had much missed the usual Sunday services, abandoned under orders of the health department and furthermore that they heard of more people who wanted to go to church on Sunday and could not than they had ever before come in contact with in the district. In fact it looked as if prohibitory health orders might do a tremendous evangelistic work. For the benefit of the Review prints the following pulpit utterances that would have been delivered had the ministers had the opportunity.

The following includes the main points of a sermon prepared by Rev. M. G. Decker of the Methodist church:

Following is a sermon prepared for delivery by Rev. Fry on Sunday at the Presbyterian church:

"God Not to be Restricted to Special Times, Places, Persons." 1 Kings 19:11-13 "And the servants of the king of Syria said unto him, Their God is a God of the hills; therefore they were stronger than we; but let us fight against them in the plain, and surely we shall be stronger than they." Read Psalm 139 and John 4.

The Syrians are at war with the Israelites. They have met with defeat in a previous conflict. Like good soldiers they have tried to understand the secret of their defeat. Among the offered explanations is this, the God of the Israelites is a God of the hills, and as we have met them in the hills, their own strongholds, we have met with defeat. Let us avoid the hills, where they have the protection and help of their God, and engage them in the valley. There we shall defeat them, because they will be where their God cannot help them. Faulty as their reasoning seems to us they believed they had good grounds for it. They observed that the places of worship of the Israelites were on the high places; that the Israelites chose to fight in the hills; that these people sang about the mountains as a source of help. But while we may understand their reasoning we should avoid their conclusion. And as they suffered a terrible defeat in the valleys we should be warned against an exclusion of God that will bring defeat and loss to us. For God is not to be restricted to special places—the hills, for instance; nor to special times—threatening disaster, for instance; nor to special people—prophets and priests, for instance. He is a God of the hills but also of the valleys. Have we learned that so that our lives are affected by it?

It is natural and easy to associate Him with special things. The hill top experiences are the exceptional ones; they are the great and decisive moments of life. It is easy to believe that God is not far from them. It has been said that "the hilltop is a moral as well as a physical elevation." Up there God seems to be about. And so the high places have been made the abode of the gods. Jesus found that idea existing as shown in his conversation with the woman of Samaria in John 4:20-24. It is a half truth, and like many such may lead to faulty living. God is to be found in the hills, in the great experiences of life. We need Him there. We can be sure He is found if we turn to Him. It is not His will that we should meet the supreme moments alone and in our own strength. As He helped the Israelites in the hills, so too can He help us. This means we can have his help in crisis of life.

It is not so easy to associate God with the ordinary things of life. It is not easy, but it is necessary for success. God is not a localized or restricted God. He is in the hills, but as well He is in the valleys. He is with us in the great experiences that seem all important, but as surely He is with us in the daily round of common affairs. As Psalm 139 sets forth, He is found everywhere; we cannot get away from His presence even though we try. It is not only true that He is in the common round of duties, but He is especially present there. These fill our lives; they are not exceptional. It is in these we most need Him and where there is the need there His presence may be sure to be found. As Israel found Him in the valley so too may we, to help us with our battles and duties. This means we can have His help every day in our common affairs, in the mine, our homes, everywhere.

And if we are to have real success in our undertakings we must remember the lesson here taught: The Syrians excluded God from the valley, and suffered as a result. To Israel God's presence and help there meant victory, as well as farther up the hills. To exclude Him from the physical abode means death and loss. "In Him we live and move and have our being." Exclude Him from any of our living and it means failure. Though we accumulate much, and receive the rewards and praise of men, the disaster wrought is all the worse. Trust in Him and obedience to His will is necessary for the highest life and the truest success.

Our God is a God of the hills and of the valleys. We need Him most in the valleys. But whatever our experiences, whether we be living on the mountain top or down in the valley, let us seek His help, that our foes may not conquer us and that we may further His will among men.

the heart of a man is that which makes the beginning.

1. We might say that all Christian truth leads Godward.
2. But there is one truth that revolutionizes the life of a man. (That truth is Jesus Christ, the sinners' Savior.)
3. It has pleased God of the foolishness of preaching to save some, make the Christian.
4. The word of truth is presented.
5. The spirit of truth convinces.
6. The heart yields in obedient submission and service.

Illustration: Once there was a brier growing in a ditch and there came along a gardener and began to dig about it and lift it from its place, etc.

1. This truth planted with in the heart and worked out through the life will perfect the Christian.
1. The child feeds and grows to perfect stature of man or woman.
2. All plants draw their food from the same soil but they don't all produce the same fruit.
3. God's grace abounds to all men and out of diversity of nature he brings unity.
- VI. God has adapted this truth to your peculiar necessity and this truth planted in your life will produce the Christian man, woman, boy or girl you ought to be.

1. How many illustrations of truth can you call to mind.
- a. The drunkard shoemaker.
- b. The young man in Louisville, Kentucky.
2. Why not accept this truth and let the work begin now in your own life.
3. You may be young but you will need all the time you will have to complete this work.

The Making of a Christian

1. The crowning act of God in creation was the making of a man.
2. Gods ideal for that man was that he be a Christian.
- a. A man cannot climb to his highest through any other way.
- b. His eternal home with God is reached by the Christians' path.
3. When God came down out of heaven and walked among men in the person of Jesus Christ we beheld his ideal and saw the highest perfection in manhood.
- a. In Jesus we have the design and pattern from heaven.
- b. If we follow any other design the product cannot reach perfection, neither will it be acceptable to the designer.
1. The making of a Christian then, is the casting of human life into the mould rounded out and perfected in the life of Jesus Christ.
1. Gods idea in every Christian is the reproduction of Jesus Christ His son in the world. (He calls us sons.)
2. That is a high ideal but it is Gods ideal and hence a possibility.
3. It is Gods ideal for every man, not just a few.
4. Who can measure the heights of fathom the depths of the possibilities of a human life in the light of our ideal.
- II. If the Christian is to be a reproduction of the Christ life the making of a Christian is the greatest work known to men.
1. No earthly interest is compared to it. Here man is reaching Gods ideal.
2. Jesus aroused great interest in himself when He turned water into wine, but every Christian is a far greater work.
3. If the Christian is the skilled product of human and divine effort, should we not give ourselves to the task gladly and willingly.
- III. It is not only a great work but it is a continuous life engagement.
1. The making of a Christian is not an instantaneous job.
2. The beginning to be is instantaneous but its only the beginning.
3. The making of yourself Christian is a work you cannot do alone. (God creates and you can develop what He has begun.)
4. The life of this world is supported on the cooperative plan, man and God working in conjunction.
5. God stands ready to begin the work when you are ready.

HUNTING LICENSES NOW BEING ISSUED IN STATE

Cost 50 Cents and Are Available from Clerks of Boards of Supervisors

State Game Warden Rogers advises the Review that he expects at early date to make appointment of a deputy game warden for this vicinity, the matter having been under advisement for some time and the importance of the local territory being deemed to warrant the action.

The state game warden also advises that hunting licenses are now being issued in the state and can be secured on application to the clerk of the board of supervisors in each county. The price of the resident general hunting license is 50 cents, which may be enclosed with application in writing to the clerk if personal application is not made. It is unlawful to hunt without securing license. The latter contains description of the holder and must be given accurately with the application, age, height, weight, color of eyes and hair and signature of the licensee being required. The license is in no case transferable.

At the present time all game seasons in the state are closed excepting ducks, geese and brant, which may be killed until April 1, reopening September 1. The duck bag for one person in one day is limited to 25.

"SUCH DELICIOUS Doughnuts!"

Cottolene makes delicious doughnuts—free from sogginess, grease and indigestion. The reason is that Cottolene contains vegetable oil—not animal fats—heats to a much higher degree than butter or lard, fries so quickly that it forms a crisp, dry crust over the dough and prevents the absorbing of the fat.

Cottolene

Cottolene is decidedly better than butter or lard for all shortening and frying. It is healthier, it is quicker, it is more economical.

Cottolene costs no more than lard, you use but two-thirds of a pound of Cottolene to do the work of a full pound of butter or lard.

POTATO DOUGHNUTS
Cream 3 tablespoons Cottolene, add 1/2 cup sugar and 2 yolks of eggs well beaten with 1 white. Stir in 1 cup of freshly mashed potatoes, 1 cup milk. Sift 2 1/2 cups flour with 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon each of salt and ground nutmeg, also a little nutmeg, and beat to fine texture, working in flour enough to handle lightly. Roll and cut before frying and have Cottolene hot enough to brown a lot of dough lightly in half a minute. Turn doughnuts as they come to the top, and again when nicely browned.
